According to Mr. J. H. Chinn, acting observer, the thermometer at 7 a.m. yesterday registered 57 degrees, with the wind northeast. At 2 p. m., 66 degrees, with the wind northwest, and at 9 p.m., 56, with the wind from the north, and a clear sky.

DR. MITCHELL is sending medical supplies. medicines, nurses and physicians to the fever cases in the country, which are said to be increasing in about the ratio that they decrease in the city. The doctor is right. We must do as we have been done by.

THE suffering people of Brownsville are in want of fifteen hundred dollars to pay the debts they have contracted for the sick and the dead. It our relief committee can spare that amount from what funds they have on hand they ought, by all means, send it tomorrow. When we can send aid and help we ought to do it, and promptly.

THE Italians of the other cities of the Union are, we are glad to see, not unmindfu of their brethren in Memphis. Yesterday Mr. P. D. Canales, secretary of the Societa di Fratelanza Italiana, received $115 from the sister society of New York and $100 from that of Louisville. This money, very much needed by the destitute families under the care of the society, has already been properly applied, and it is elsewhere gratefully acknowledged.

ONE by one our surviving employees are returning to their posts. Mr. White, business manager, has been at work since Thursday; Mr. Brooks, river and telegraph editor will be on Monday, and so will Mr. M'Grann, foreman of the composing room. Mr. Woodlock, foreman of the press room, has been on duty since Tuesday. Of our compositors, Mr. Schiller has been at work since Monday, Mr. Hoskins, since Thursday, for a few hours each day, and yesterday, Mr. Will Taylor tried his hand for a few bours. Mr. Fred, Brennan. our city editor, is still confined to his room, convalescing slowly but surely.

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN has written three times to J. M. Keating, offering his services as nurse or in any capacity where they might prove useful. Grateful to Mr. Train, as we are to many others who have made similar things, but this plague is out of his line better confine himtelf to the sparrows and children in Madison square.

as hopeful as were those of yesterday. The decrease in deaths is very gratifying but the increase in cases would indicate that the violence of the fever is not yet spent. These, and not the deaths, after all, are the indices of the course of the epidemic. We do not not out of the woods yet, indeed we are so far in as to be unable to see the clearing. The cool weather of yesterday and last night will, however, do something for us, towards inducing the subsidence of the plague.

THE "Christian Women" of Louisville, appreciating the self-sacrifice and generosity of Annie Cook, the cyprian, who consecrated her life and property to the sick of this city, gladdened her heart by a recognition of her christian heroism that must have gone far to reconcile her to the death she met so bravely. They sent her this note, addressed to "Madame Anna Cook, Mansion House, Memphis, Dean Madame—This morning's paper announces that you have opened your house to the sick of Memphis, and that you are ministering to their wants personally. An act so generous, so benevolent, so utterly unselfish, should not be passed over without notice. History may not record this good deed, for the good deeds of women seldom live after them, but every heart in the whole country responds with affectionate gratitude to the hobbs example you have set for christian men and women. God speed you, dear madame, and, when the end comes, may the light of a better word guide you to a home beyond. From the a better word guide you to a home beyond. From the CHRISTIAN WOMEN OF LOUISVILLE, KY.

LOUISVILLE, August 28, 1878.

No doubt this affectionate and really christian recognition of her good deeds lighted Annie Cook's pathway to the grave.

THE Jews are so thoroughly organized as generally to be equal to any emergency of disaster or disease. They seldom ask relief, even of each other. THROUGHOUT this time of trouble and terror, disease and death, women, in their homes by the bed-side of the sick, as nurses from far distant Northern, Western and Southern homes, as sisters of the church, devoted to he cause of charity in all its forms, have llustrated the heroism which made them irst in faith beside the despised Christ, and first in hope by the tomb of the risen Lord. Men have deserted their wives and children, heir mothers and sisters, but we have yet to learn of one woman whose fears have overome her affection or whom terror has illed with selfishness. Had we the space we could fill our columns with the names of those whose deeds, were they known, would enkindle the smoldering fires of the coldest heart and revive the faith in woman which every thoughtful and considerate man must have. Patient and resigned, as mothers and sisters, they have in many instances, attended their sick relatives until long after the fever had its hold upon them, reviving by their sick, and bringing Hope to wait on their efforts, in some cases the best of panaceas. Indeed, were the truth known, it would be written of most of the women who have died died of black-vomit here to-day; eight or ten luring this epidemic in Memphis, that they labored, sustained by affection or by love of duty, until past relief, and died martyrs to that nice and delicate sense of duty which men rarely reach. One such case we had in a woman who rose above a sinful, wayward ife, and passed away, her later hours bright- on her arrival at Jersey City, to the quaranened and beautified by self-sacrifice as a nurse. The church, too, to which we naturally turn, if not by force of conviction by force of habit, the result of years of trial, test and endurance, has also sent into the field of death its quota of women, who, not moved by natural affections but inspired by duty

St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Friday:—Succeeding the Chicago Battalion came the Chickasaw Guards, of Memphis, Tennessee, contestants in the company drill premium. As this magnificently-uniformed company entered the gates of the amphitheater to the strains of an inspiring march, played by the ever-popular Arsenal Band, their fine appearance and soldierly bearing instantly brought forth a meet enthusiastic reception. Upon the left arm of all the men was tied a little bit of crape, which told the story of recent losses in the ranks of the company—of comman, but carried off in their prime by the insidious scourge now desolating all Southern homes. The company labored under one very serious drawback in being without their first lieutenant, J. A. Carnes obtained permission to substitute Captain M'Coy, police reserves, but at the last moment Captain Donelson, of the Porter Rifles, entered a protest,, and consequently placed the command under great disadvantage. Captain Carnes and Second-Lieutenant W. B. The only way to find what that neutralizer is, is by the series of investigations which Dr. Summers has made, assisted by Dr. Cheviss, of Savannah, who, we regret to say, has paid the penalty of his devotion to science by a severe attack of fever. Dr. Summers was peculiarly fortunate in the facilities afforded him for his investigations, which, we learn, were thorough and searching.
